Dimitar Kolchev attended a QA Fundamentals course I lead from Oct. to Dec 2018. He showed genuine passion in learning the theory and main skills needed in our profession. Besides being excellent student, I liked him much for being a team player – he was always organizing and coaching his group in our team work exercises (like simulating an Agile process, resolving conflicts in git etc.). Dimitar is a punctual and studious person. He showed 10 minutes earlier every single time. In our workshops and when doing homeworks, he was always walking that extra mile – googling by himself a couple of extra git commands, asking for the setup of an environment on which he can practice all kinds of SQL joins. I proudly and honestly recommend him for any kind of Junior or Intermediate QA position and hope to have the chance myself, to work with young bright people like him in the future.
